Bradford Woods, affiliated with Indiana University’s School of Public Health, operates 10 weeks of summer camp for people with disabilities and chronic illnesses including campers with cancer, sickle cell anemia, cerebral palsy, craniofacial anomalies, muscular dystrophy, autism, various physical disabilities, rare genetic disorders, and Down syndrome.

We hire a staff of 80+ individuals and are currently recruiting for the summer of 2018. Bradford Woods has proven to be an excellent opportunity for students in the field of Dietetics and Nutrition. This position would work very closely with our food services staff and be in charge of all the special dietary needs of campers and counselors. This position would get great experience with different types of diets and needs with great hands on experience. Bradford Woods has also served as an internship and practicum site for many students.

Because of the strong therapeutic mindset of Bradford Woods, it is our hope to fill most of our summer camp positions with people who see the need and importance of working in an environment that promotes the wellbeing of all individuals. We seek to not only provide a great experience for our campers, but also want to help students develop their skills and gain knowledge working with numerous populations of campers with special dietary needs in a high energy camp setting.
